

Corporate Subscription Form

StockAnalysis Corporate subscriptions are available for companies or organisations with multiple users who would like to take advantage of a discounted rate.

Under StockAnalysis' individual subscription terms & conditions, one subscription to this publication allows one person only access to the weekly issues using their Members login (which are now being monitored for security purposes).

However due to requests, we have created 5 available corporate packages for companies wishing to have 5 or more employees accessing the publication at a discounted rate, rather than having to pay the full price for each allocated login.

The logins will be administered by a selected company individual who will be responsible for allocating the passwords to the selected employees and informing them of any changes.

The appropriate number of passwords will be allocated by us and sent to the designated company administrator, who at the company's discretion will forward to selected employees to enable them access to StockAnalysis editions from the website for the term of the subscription.
